INTRODUCTION

The first question you have to be asking is “Why am I going on this mission trip?” There are two common misconceptions about these types of trips. First, there is a problem with attendees who emphasize the adventure of visiting a new place. This is more a form of tourism than service. The other common misconception is the over-emphasis of our own roles in the local arena. All too often, Americans travel to underserved populations to “fix” the problems and help “those poor people.” The attitude and thinking can closely resemble a Savior Complex. It is essential that every participant take the time to pray and reflect on their reasons for attending the trip. We plan to communicate the gospel of Jesus Christ by our words and deeds to the people of India.

Some of you might be asking, “What can I do in India?” We ask you the question, “What do you want to do in India?” Your very presence makes an impact on the children and adults whom we serve. Education teams, medical and dental teams, recreation, hygiene skills, singing, skits, pastor and teacher workshops; share with us what you are interested in doing and we will try to find a place to match your skills and desires.

Our short-term trips make an impact by meeting direct needs and communicating our care and support. But the long-term needs of the children in our schools are met by local people who commit their service to children day-in and day-out. It is the dedicated people here in the U.S. working throughout the year to raise funds, network with other agencies, and pass along the vision of our work in India, that support local efforts and the on-site work of the ministry. It is our hope that the impact of your trip will continue long after you return as you tell the story of your own journey. Team members give hope to Indians.

Pray. If God leads you, come with us to India. Come prepared for an experience that will change your life if you let it. All we ask of you is a willing heart and a servant’s hands.

Serve the Children partners with Hosanna Ministries, an Indian NGO. It is our vision to let the under privileged and under developed children get an opportunity to develop in a way that will help them be self supporting. We hope this will in turn enable and encourage them to help other poor and needy children develop mentally, emotionally, spiritually, and physically.

Programs and Infrastructure

India's forgotten children are living on meager subsistence in rural tribal villages. They live hours away from access to clean water or education. Generational poverty and an unrelenting caste system create little opportunity for children to have a better life than their parents.

Nutrition and education are urgent issues in India:

- 47% of young children in India are malnourished (UNICEF)
- 74% of children below three years of age are anemic (UNICEF)
- 1 in 3 people in lower classes are literate (Asia Times)
- Nearly 1 in 5 children nationwide are laborers and not attending school (Orphan Outreach and UNICEF)

The government and a number of non-governmental organizations are seeking to provide food and education to India's impoverished rural families, but the need continues to outweigh the help. Families in the Lasina community are primarily tribal with little to no knowledge of the person and work of Jesus Christ – yet they are eager to send their children to our school where English is spoken and taught. Children who attend our school would otherwise have no access to education and would most likely join their parents at work. In this area of the country, children as young as five will work all day in labor intensive work, such as picking cotton or making bricks by hand.

In Lasina we offer a vocational school and currently teach young people from local villages Microsoft Office and tailoring. Without these skills, these kids would probably end up as farm laborers earning about $3 per day. Lasina is a very rural village and we are the only option for vocational training close by.

In the slums of Mumbai, India, many of the women and children earn a meager living by picking rags from the dump and selling them. They are vulnerable to human trafficking, disease, and malnutrition. We offer sewing classes for women to help them better provide for their families, a preschool, an after school program and a day center with a meal for children who would otherwise have no hope of education.

What will I do there?

Many times, people think they have no skills that can be used on a mission trip. However, your skill level is not what makes a difference on a mission trip. It is your presence and willingness to serve that make a difference. On the top of the front page of this mission team book are three important words- GO, LEARN, RESPOND.

Go- It sounds simple but for many people this is a major hurdle to get over. Everyone has issues to work through. Finances, work, family, and school can all complicate planning a trip. It is sometimes a very complex decision-making process to go on a mission trip. What we need to do is look through the issues that seem to prevent us from going and see a solution. Is God calling you to go? I guarantee that He has a great solution for any challenge you face. Before you say no, let's talk.

Learn- You will learn so much about yourself, your teammates and your relationship with God. It will amaze you at how different you will be after the trip "appears" to be over. I tell people that Americans know a lot about faith. We can purchase and read many books on this topic and hear many sermons on-line and in person. When I go on a mission trip, I learn about faith from people who actually depend on it every day for meeting their most basic needs.

Respond- Do not expect your mission trip to end when you arrive back in the United States. When you return, that's when your mission trip begins. This is not a "check this off my list of things to do" trip. This is a life changing experience. What will you do with it now? Get involved with Serve the Children, find sponsors for the kids you have grown to love, get more active in your church, disciple others, etc.

There are three goals we want mission team members to have as they prepare and go:

1. What can you do to impact your relationship with God? How is your daily prayer life and what do you do for daily devotions? Set goals to pray and read your Bible on a daily basis.
2. What can you do to make an impact on your team members? Pray for them daily, engage in discussions with them, help them when they get sick, get involved in their lives.
3. What can you do to impact the people we are serving in India? Spend time with the kids, the teachers, the staff. Find out about their lives, ask to visit where they live, listen to them talk. This will change your life.

What do we do there? This is a normal question. Personally, I like to ask, "What is the impact of us being there?" No matter our task, the most important thing we will do is make new friends and share our lives. Spending time with the kids and with our staff leaves them with memories that they cannot get from reading a book or listening to a class on some topic. Yes, teaching them is important and many within our reach need this, but building a relationship is eternal.

PLANNING YOUR TRIP

Five months before the team leaves, we will begin holding informational meetings and request that you provide us with your application. You need to ask yourself, “Why do I want to go on a short-term mission trip?” Schedule your vacation time at work.

Four months before the team leaves, you need to complete the medical release form, the team covenant and plan to pay for your airline ticket. You also need to confirm that your passport is current and renew it if necessary.

Three months - You should schedule any required immunizations. You should also send out your fundraising letters. Start your journal. Airfare should be paid for.

Two months before we leave, you need to pay for the balance of the costs.

One month before we leave, you should begin thinking about the clothes and other items that you will need to take. Confirm that you have a ride to the airport, purchase your supplies and make sure you know when to begin taking your malaria pills.

1, 2 days before we leave- usually we have a packing party and weigh our suitcases to confirm they are within the weight limits for check in luggage. Review the check list- Do you have everything?

Start taking malarone for malaria if this is the pill you will be taking.

Go to the bank and get your spending money. Check each bill and do not take in bills that are ripped, written on or heavily worn.

TEAM MEETINGS

In the U.S.

We will have team meetings beginning several months prior to leaving for India. THESE MEETINGS ARE REQUIRED FOR TEAM MEMBERS. The purpose of these meetings is to prepare you for your experience, to bond as a team, to communicate the goals and objectives of the trip and to plan how we will accomplish them. Spouse and friends are welcome to come. Topics that we will discuss include:

1. Trip Logistics, i.e. communication, dress code, travel arrangements, etc. These items are covered in your team book so we will not spend a lot of time going through these items in the team meeting. Read your team book thoroughly!
2. Cultural issues
3. Team member roles and preparation
4. Spiritual preparation
5. Immunizations and medications for malaria and other medical issues
6. Keeping a journal
7. Packing and luggage needs
8. Passport and visa requirements
9. Questions and concerns

In India

Once we arrive in India, we will also have team meetings. We will meet for breakfast as a team and have a devotional time together. This meeting is also required. We will quickly review what we are planning to do during the day and remind everyone to drink plenty of water. We will have meetings after dinner as necessary to discuss changes in the schedule, find out how everyone is doing and go over plans for the next day. Evening meetings could also happen with groups that are working together, such as a teaching team or medical team.

Another reason we gather as a team is to give you a chance to retreat from everyone in the area who will be persistently trying to spend time with you. We need time together as a team. Sometimes conflict within our team needs to be handled as well.

Married couples need time alone. Leaders need time alone. You will need time alone. But we also need time to just relax with each other. It is a good chance to decompress and cope with all of the things you will be experiencing. Please read #6 in the team covenant that all team members must sign.

IMMUNIZATIONS/MEDICATIONS

You should be up-to-date on all of your regular immunizations before traveling (Check on Tetanus). In addition to our regular schedule of immunizations, it is recommended that you receive the immunizations for Hepatitis A and Typhoid. The inoculation for Hepatitis A is completed in two doses, 2-4 weeks apart, so plan ahead. Your immunization record should be recorded on a yellow card and the Yellow card is considered part of your travel documents.

There are several anti-malarial drugs to consider. Talk to your doctor about the right one for you. Products containing Deet and mosquito nets are also effective. Nothing is worse than being sick on a trip... especially that sick... and should you have a dangerous strain, the long flight home may delay essential medical treatment.

Most people with medical insurance will find the best rates for immunizations at their doctor's office. If they do not carry a particular immunization (such as Yellow Fever), you have several options:

- Local pharmacies - call ahead so they can make sure to stock what you need
- Infections Northwest - 1624 S. I Street, Suite 405. Schedule 30 days in advance:
253-428-8754

Medical Checklist:

- Acquire vaccinations: Tetanus, Hep A, Typhoid (Hep B for medical workers), polio
- Talk to your doctor about anti-malarial medications
- Make sure you have adequate supply (plus a few extra) of regular medications
- Consider over-the-counter medications for comfort: pain relief, allergy, sleep aid, upset stomach
- Don't forget essentials like contact lens solutions and sunscreen

PASSPORT

If you are applying for a passport for the first time, you must do so in person. Visit the Department of State webpage (<http://travel.state.gov/passport>), collect the appropriate documents, and search for an acceptance facility convenient for you.

If you have had a passport in the past you may renew by mail under certain circumstances, so check the website above regarding your situation. Check the expiration date. You may not travel to India with a passport that will expire within six months of your dates of travel. Do the math and make sure your passport is valid for the travel dates plus the following six months. Also, confirm you have at least two blank pages for your visa stamp.

In any case, apply early. Obtaining a passport can be delayed for any number of reasons. If you are not a U.S. citizen, you will need to take extra steps to ensure your passport and travel documents are in order.

VISA

You will need a Visa to enter India. You apply online for a tourist visa at the India consulate in San Francisco. You will need to complete the application and return it with 2 passport sized photos (you can try to do this yourself by following these instructions: http://howto.cnet.com/8301-11310_39-57441212-285/how-to-take-your-own-passport-photos/), the processing fee, submit a proof of address such as a copy of your driver's license or a utility bill and a copy of your birth certificate or high school diploma. Be very careful with these documents and confirm that YOUR NAME IS EXACTLY THE SAME on each document and your passport. Your passport must have at least two blank visa pages. Allow 5 days for processing and submit this at least 30 days before we leave.

Note a couple of the unique requirements for the visa found on their web site:

You need to include one recent passport size photograph (black/white or color) depicting a front pose against white background on photographic paper. No glasses are allowed to be worn in the photo. Affix the photo on the India Visa Application with glue or paste. Do not staple the photo.

You must have a document that shows your address such as a driver's license or you must submit a copy of a major utility bill (Water, Gas, Electric, Sewage) or a copy of a valid/current lease containing both the landlord and tenant signatures. The following items are not accepted: cell phone bill, credit card statement, bank statement or lease. The address cannot include a P.O. Box. Proof of your current physical address is required.

You should review these requirements now and prepare for the unique requirements. Do not take these issues lightly.

WHAT SHOULD I TAKE?

Important Items

Passport- in a zip-top bag. Provide a copy of your passport and yellow card to your team leader.
Money belt (and/or necklace) – cash in newer bills- amount should be at least $300 depending on how much you want to spend on souvenirs and eating out or at the airports. Traveler's checks and credit cards can be used in the US and Europe; but this will not work in all places in India. Snack size zip-top bags work well for holding cash. You can exchange for Indian dollars (rupees) at the Mumbai airport or we will arrange for this.

Clothing

Everyone: 3-4 changes of outerwear in cotton or other breathable fabric, hat, light night wear (2) and robe; sandals or flip flops for in-house wear; sturdy shoes & socks (3 pairs) or closed-toe sandals; underwear (4-6 changes). Conservative wear is critical and you will be asked to change your clothes if they are not appropriate.

Women: No low-necked tank tops or spaghetti straps, no transparent, tight clothing or strapless tops. On the Ankoor campus, sleeveless tops or T-shirts and knee length shorts or capris are fine. Off campus, tops or tees with short sleeves that cover the upper arm, ankle length skirts or a Punjabi suit of tunic (salwar) and pants are required, along with a scarf.

Men: T-shirts and shorts are fine except when leaving the campus. Men must wear long pants when leaving the campus.

Your clothes will be hand scrubbed on stones, so be prepared to wash anything delicate yourself.

The following is a suggested list of items and you will not need to purchase all of these. But if you are sensitive to the sun (sunburn, skin irritation, headache, etc) you should bring in more than one head covering, stronger sun screen and more aspirin than someone who is not as sensitive. Other team members will also bring items that can be shared (zip ties for example). Your supporters can use this list to help you with your expenses. The electrical current in India is 220 volts, 50 cycle's alternating current (AC); you may want to bring a converter.

MUST HAVES:

Bible

Bug spray-40% to 100% depending on your skin sensitivity and the time of year

Journal and pens/pencils

All/any medications (malarone)

Electrolytes for the water

Money belt

Passport with visa- keep in zip lock bag

Sunglasses

Sunscreen (SPF 30+)

Toothbrush/paste

Towels/wash cloths (microfiber)- 2 each

Personal toiletries

Checklist for packing

Carry-On: Your bag should be able to fit into a 22" x 14" x 9" box

- Any electronics, expensive, or non-replaceable items (theft can be an issue with luggage in transit)
- A few of the toiletries that will keep you comfortable during a long trip (i.e. toothbrush/paste, wash-cloth in a zip lock bag (microfiber towels work best or body wipes), comb, deodorant, chap-stick) Remember to keep fluids under 3 oz.
- A book, magazine, game to keep yourself entertained
- Snacks (although they feed you well on international flights)
- Ear plugs, eye mask, neck pillow
- ALL your necessary medications for the whole trip
- Journal
- One change of clothes (2 pair undergarments) and anything else you cannot live without for a couple of days incase luggage is delayed
- Towels and wash cloth
- Sunglasses/eye glasses/Contact lenses
- Mosquito net
- Small battery-operated fan
- Camera/phone for photos and essential charging chords
- Travel-sized Kleenex tissue packs to carry in pocket or purse (for restrooms with no TP!)

Checked-in Luggage: Your bag should weigh less than 40 pounds

- Toiletries, including over-the-counter medicines for your comfort
- Clothing- 2 or 3 additional changes of clothes
- Sunscreen
- Nail clippers
- Chapstick
- Insect repellent
- Waterless hand cleanser for purse or pocket
- Feminine products
- Something with an alarm (phone, travel clock) and appropriate chargers
- Small flashlight
- Photos of family to show Liberian friends
- Handy items: sharpie pens, zip lock bags, pocket tool (checked-in luggage only) a garbage bag or plastic grocery bags for soiled laundry, zip ties, tape, extra batteries

The electrical current in India is 220 volts, 50 cycle's alternating current (AC); you may want to bring a converter.

Rule of thumb to follow: If I need this in the US, I should be bringing this with me to India. You can't run to the local store – there isn't one.

Think about these questions as you prepare for the trip:

What medications do I take; occasionally, a lot, all the time?

What items do I use every day, weekly or only occasionally and really need?

What things do I use when I do not feel well?

What things do I wish I had when I am away from home?

You also need to keep your boarding pass until your luggage is picked up in India.

You will need to put a name tag on your carry on in India with one of their tags at the airport. This tag must be stamped by security before you can get on the plane.

Check in luggage- Each person needs to check in one bag that must weigh the maximum allowed by the airline. Currently, this is 40-50 pounds depending on the airline. We suggest trading bags of clothes with a team mate so if your bag is lost, you still have some clothes. Remember to write down the brand of luggage, color and basic contents of each bag in your journal in case your luggage is lost and you have to describe it. Make sure you have your name and address on each bag including your carry on!

NOTE- If your bag is delayed, you could be without it for at least one week. Plan carefully what you put in your carry on and what is in your checked bag.

TRAVEL TIPS

Airline travel can be an exhausting experience. You probably will not sleep well the night before you leave because of the excitement of the trip. You might stay up late preparing for the journey and taking care of last minute details.

There are a number of things you can do to make your travel experience more pleasant. Drink plenty of water on the plane. Buy bottled water after you go through security before you get on the plane. You can always ask the flight attendant for more water once you have boarded the plane. On long flights, it is important to get up and walk around occasionally to maintain good circulation and avoid stiffness. If you cannot sleep, at least try to rest as much as possible.

Simple stretching exercises help a lot; stretch your feet, turn your head and hold it, flex some muscles. Wear support hose. Wear comfortable clothes and layer them. Take off your shoes. Take books, crossword puzzles, games to play, shows & music on your iPod if you have one. Remember to pack for both ways!

India itself is 12 ½ or 13 ½ hours ahead of us, depending on daylight savings time but since we fly through Europe or over the North Pole, we will cross several time zones.

How can I improve plane travel?

Most people don't have any problems when they fly, but it's possible to make airplane travel safer and more comfortable. Here are some tips:

- Carry enough of all of your medicines to last your whole trip in your carry-on luggage. Ask your doctor whether you should change your dosages because your eating and sleeping times will change at your destination. Take extra medicine with you in case your return trip is delayed.
- If you have diabetes or epilepsy, carry a notification and identification card (such as the "Diabetes Alert Card" from the American Diabetes Association). Have the name and phone number of your doctor with you in case of an emergency. Remember to bring along the names and dosages of all of your medicines.
- Drink nonalcoholic, decaffeinated beverages and water to avoid becoming dehydrated.

What can I do about jet lag?

- Get plenty of sleep before you leave.
- Eat well-balanced meals, avoid overeating and alcohol
- Exercise as much as you can on your trip.
- Use sleep medicines for only a few days.
- Get used to a new time zone by going along with the local meal and bedtime schedules.

What about pain in my ears?

If your ears hurt when you fly, try taking a decongestant medicine (such as pseudoephedrine) before you get on the plane. You can also swallow often and chew gum during the flight. Talk to your doctor about taking any kind of medication.

Other suggestions:

- Place a wash-cloth in a zip-loc back in your carry-on. This way you can wash up and put away with washcloth without getting everything else wet. Or bring pre-moistened bath wipes.
- Neck pillow!!
- Trade a few outfits with a teammate so that if your bag is lost you still have something to wear
- Lock your luggage with luggage locks (must be TSA approved)
- Do not pack anything in the small outer pockets of your bags.
- Keep record of your bag brand, size and color in addition to saving your luggage receipt.
- Do not haphazardly toss your used boarding passes. They contain all your personal information!
- Keep it simple, but do not be afraid to bring what makes you comfortable. Comfort is king!
- Drink a ton of water and eat a clean diet in the days leading up to the trip. You will be amazed at how poor diet and dehydration contribute to swelling feet and jetlag
- For those who take medications, consider how crossing time zones impact the time of day you are to take medicines.
- International flights are more accommodating to stiff bodies and tired people. Take advantage of the ability to walk the plane or stretch.
- Start the trip being well-rested and take opportunities to sleep during travel if you can. Traveling to India can take anywhere from 28-36 hours!

TRIP LOGISTICS

We will meet at the airport and check in together. Be prepared for a long flight. Regardless of the route we take, we usually have long flights and long layovers. Bring whatever you need to be most comfortable for this part of the journey.

When you arrive in Mumbai at the international terminal, you will pass through immigration, where they will check your passport and visa. Do not wear any Serve the Children or religious apparel. Very important- You will probably be asked why you are going to Lasina and who will you be visiting. You are visiting Danny and Glory Gaikwad and they are your friends. Be sure to pronounce their last name correctly.

At baggage claim, we will pick up our luggage and clear customs. Once this is done, we travel to the domestic terminal. The airport is hot and crowded, which can be very challenging after such a long journey.

We can exchange US dollars to rupees and Danny will pick us up from the airport. It will be a 3 hour drive to the hotel.

Our breakfast is around 7.30 AM. You can either drink water, tea or coffee. We will be served chai 3 times a day, including before breakfast. We want to develop daily habits of praying as a team, so we begin each day praying together. We will have a short devotional and business meeting after we eat.

Everyday will be a little different. After breakfast on the first day, we will probably visit the day center and meet with the staff. We might do a skit or sing a song. We can do an art project. After this we will eat lunch.

The afternoon is typically the hottest time of day. You will need to remind yourself and your teammates to drink plenty of water, lather on the sunscreen and bug-spray, and wear a hat when outdoors. The sun burns quickly in the 90 plus degree heat. You will need to drink more water the first few days as you adjust.

Dinner varies, but when served, you are expected to eat the food out of respect for the cook. Illness, food allergies or sensitivities or a queasy stomach are exceptions. The food can be spicier than you are used to at home.

What will we do there?

Activities can vary while we are there. You must plan ahead so you are prepared to handle additional teaching or activity time with the kids.

1. Child sponsorship program- Sponsorship is a key method of support in countries where we serve. Each team member is asked to find five people who will commit to sponsoring a child. You will find a child for each of them while you're there. You can also help update our sponsorship information on children currently sponsored. We need team members to photograph children currently sponsored, get a letter from them to their sponsor and interview new children for sponsorship.
2. VBS at the Center- Be prepared to lead art projects, songs and lessons as a team. This includes music (teaching a new song or leading the singing with a guitar or CD), message and a skit.
3. Teaching- read stories, read poems, teaching phonics, math, science, art and other crafts.
4. Picture taking and display- the children love to have their pictures taken and see their pictures displayed. Teams have used Polaroid cameras.
5. Cooking- you may be able to join in on the cooking and learn some great ways to cook Indian food for your friends when you return home.
6. Vocational Training - Be prepared to tour our tailoring and computer classes and give a word of encouragement to the women in the tailoring classes.
7. Teacher and Staff Training - Some teams may prepare training material and train teachers and staff based on the in-country need.

Picture taking

If a stranger came to my child's school to support the staff and took photos of my child and posted them on Facebook, I would be LIVID. Granted, the context is not the same, but all posted images should be nameless and should point positively to the local ministry, not to our "personal work." Social media relating to overseas ministry is a complex issue. Respect that you are publicly posting images of someone else's reality. It should honor, lift up, and reflect what God is doing. ASK before you take a photo.

CULTURAL ENTRY

"So, whether you eat or drink, or whatever you do, do all to the glory of God. Give no offense to Jews or to Greeks or to the church of God, just as I try to please all men in everything I do, not seeking my own advantage, but that of many, that they may be saved." 1 Corinthians 10:31-33

- As you enter a new culture and begin to make observations and experience life in a new setting, you will either find this to be a positive time of growth or a very difficult and frustrating time.

- Let go of expectations. Let the Lord speak to you. Let Him reveal new things to you about Himself, yourself and others. Be flexible. Keep a journal and maintain a daily quiet time. Lean on the Lord.
- Rather than being suspicious, fearful, prejudiced or feeling superior, try to see things with openness, acceptance, trust and adaptability. It is inevitable that you will feel uncomfortable as you live in a new cultural setting. At times, you may become frustrated or feel misunderstood, confused, tense or embarrassed. This is to be expected. It is your response to these emotions that will determine a negative or positive outcome. Rather than rationalize, criticize or isolate yourself, try to observe, inquire and listen. If you do, you will find that you will establish a rapport with the people and empathy for their plight rather than alienate yourself through withdrawal.
- Don't assume anything. Ask questions and observe. You will be stretched.
- Cultural differences exist all around you, some are visible.
- Cultural beliefs are not visible but they govern the thoughts of the people. Women care for the home and children and may work outside the home as well. Men work outside the home, if they're lucky. Many Christian churches teach against dancing, drinking, smoking, excessive make-up and jewelry and hold to varying degrees of legalism about these matters. The society is event versus time-oriented. Punctuality is not a priority. Assertiveness, loud, and aggressive behaviors are not considered admirable traits.
- The purpose of your short-term mission is to be a support to the STC staff and children and be a witness for Christ. It is about dying to self and living for Christ for two weeks. It is about being sensitive to the culture. If it means wearing a long skirt, or removing an earring or eating a food that you are not particularly fond of...just do it... for the Lord. You will be blessed.

Hindu Religion

Hinduism may be categorized as either a distinct culture or as a particular religion. As a religion, it is extremely difficult to define. There is no record of any founder, there is no central leader, they do not have a church, they do not send out missionaries. Hinduism developed over a very long time and absorbed many diverse religious cultures.

Hindu people call it vaidika dharma, the Vedic religion or sanatama dharma, the eternal religion. Hindus are born into their religion. Those who practice Hinduism are very selective, choosing what they want from any cultural source and blending it into their religion (syncretism). The Hindu religion is very vague about its beliefs.

One of the definite tenets of the Hindu religion is the caste system. This system sets the Hindu religion apart from all other religions in the world.

Hindu society is divided into four main castes:

Brahmins- priests and teachers
Kshatriyas- warriors and rulers
Vaisyas- economic wealth producers
Sudras- serfs and laborers

Below this 4th level, there are probably millions of outcasts who are called untouchables.

The main theological belief of Hinduism is centered in one omnipresent, divine being called Brahma. Belief in Brahma is a diversified mixture of theism, polytheism and pantheism.

In the Hindu view, rebirth, reincarnation or transmigration will take place in the lives of all creatures. Karma is simply the fruit of every Hindu's past merits and demerits. Being bad will reap suffering and bondage in a person's existence. Good actions can lead to freedom from this bondage.

The process by which an individual passes through reincarnation is called samsara. Reincarnation is believed to be a natural principle of the universe involving man and animals. Everyone carries a piece of their past with them. The main purpose in life of all Hindus is to escape from this endless wheel of samsara and karma.

The Hindu religion is not concerned with the soul's relationship to God or to other souls. It is only concerned with the eternal being of the soul. The soul is eternal. It is not limited to mankind but is the true essence of all living things including plants and animals.

The soul does not act and thus is not an agent of sin. There is not personal moral guilt. Sin is not the personal guilt that it is for a Christian.

Salvation in Hinduism is the separation of the eternal soul from the phenomenal world. It is release from samsara and from the bondage of karma. In Christianity, deliverance from sin and death is through the redemptive work of Jesus Christ.

Hindus claim that the ultimate reality is essentially unknowable. They recognize the right of everyone to believe in whatever way of life they may choose. This is contrary to what Christians believe. In John 14:6 Jesus states that "I am the Truth." Jesus says in John 8:32 that "the Truth will set you free." Christians believe that God has revealed the truth.

Hindus believe that gods are merely a projection of human will, desire and thought. It is estimated there are over 300,000,000 Hindu gods in existence.

God loves Hindus. We need to approach Hindus on the common ground of love.

Tribal Religions

Though Hinduism is the predominant religion of India, many of the children who come to the Ankoor Home are not Hindu, but come from a background of tribal religious practices. These include ancestor worship and animal sacrifice. You may see the places of sacrifice when you visit a village. Many villages also practice witchcraft.

SPIRITUAL MATTERS

Your spiritual life could be challenged on a mission trip. Lack of privacy, a different schedule of activities (eating times, work, etc), and lack of sleep can impact your time with the Lord. But you must adapt your new situation to your daily time with God. I get up early in the morning to pray and find time in the evening for Bible reading. This time comes very naturally when I combine it with updating my journal.

We cannot emphasize the importance of having a daily quiet time. Satan will be doing his best to keep you away from God. If he succeeds, this will impact the team and the goals of our trip. Read Ephesians 6:10-19. Be prepared for spiritual warfare! This applies equally as you prepare to go on the trip and after you come home.

Bring a simple devotional along with you. Set the pace for your roommates by having a daily devotional. Let them see how important this is to you.

Be prepared to share your faith with the people that we come in contact with on campus. Most of our staff are Christians but you can find some non-Christians in the outreach that you might be involved with.

Writing a 3-5-minute personal testimony is easy. You do not have to create a theological discourse to explain how you came to know Christ. Talk about how your life was before you became a Christian, explain how you became a Christian and end with a verse that has a special meaning to you or talk about the importance of Christ in your life now.

BUT REMEMBER: India is a Hindu country and Christians are persecuted by radical Hindus in many areas. We do not want to endanger our hosts or create future problems for them. We can leave – they cannot. If someone in Mumbai we are visiting asks why we are there, the usual response is to visit our friends. We do not actively share our faith unless we are asked by our hosts to do so in an appropriate environment.

COMMUNICATIONS

Most phones will work in India but you need to talk to your phone service provider to confirm the cost of calls. However, your phone is not designed for the heat, dust and humidity that it will experience in India. We suggest you leave your phone at home if it is an expensive one.

Texting is usually available but you should confirm the cost as it can be expensive.

Internet- We should have internet access. Internet access can be very slow and sporadic. I suggest you communicate with your supporters, friends and relatives with regular Facebook updates.

Facebook- The easiest form of communication about what the team is doing is to have your friends and family join the Serve the Children group site on Facebook. This is updated regularly during the mission trip.

Email updates- if your family or friends are not on Facebook, we can update them with regular email updates. Please provide us with their names and addresses.

However, I want to emphasize that you are in India on a mission trip and you need to focus on the team and why we are here. Do not plan on spending all of your free time chatting with your friends in the US; that is not the reason you come to India.

Emergency contact- We will provide you with a name and phone number to give to your family so if an emergency occurs at home, they can call the number and we will be contacted. There is a 12.5-13.5hour time zone difference.

WHY RAISE SUPPORT?

- A Prayer Team Will Result

When people are challenged to give financially, they are likely to pray for you, too.

- Your Faith Will Grow

Support raising is a faith journey. When days go by and your support level does not increase, you may be tempted to question your call to missions. Those are the days when you will be challenged to step forward in faith that God has called you and, in His time, will supply every need. You will learn how to adapt to divergent, difficult, and sometime desperate circumstances. That's when you realize that you are so limited and God is so limitless.

- It Broadens the Missionary Vision for you and your church

The best recruiter for world missions is the missionary yourself. When you meet face-to-face with others, you are able to communicate your vision and your call. Your enthusiasm and dedication stimulate and challenges interest and involvement in missions.

How to Raise Support:

1. EVALUATE your contribution. Other team members can tell you the surprising places God provides money (unexpected refund checks, garage sales, extra income opportunities). Challenge yourself to plan ahead, evaluate what sacrifices you can make in the next few months to contribute toward your trip.
2. LOOK outside of your church. Friends, relatives, co-workers and neighbors, whether they are Christians or not, will feel blessed to invest in you and God's leading in your life. Seek out their support. Many people are looking for opportunities to invest in someone else's life and help a good cause. Use Facebook and other social media sites.
3. ASK inside your church to see if your small group or ministry team friends would pray about God's leading to give you prayer and/or financial help for this opportunity. Do not give requests to people that do not know you personally unless they hear of your need and want to be a part of your team.
4. DEVELOP your financial supporters into prayer supporters. Use the Prayer Covenant form included in this book to gather prayer team members. Your prayer partner can keep a copy of the covenant to remind them to pray for you. They should return one to you so that you know that you have prayer supporters lifting you up each day during the trip.

RE-ENTRY

RE-ENTRY is the experience you will have as you return to your home, family and friends. You may have experienced changed attitudes and values. The greater the change in attitudes and values, the more unsettling the RE-ENTRY to your personal home culture will be.

Although you may not realize the impact this short-term mission has had on you, there are a few things to consider:

- The things you have experienced here are very unique. Some people will never have such an impacting experience in their entire lives. As you go home, it will be as though you were in a time warp...so much has happened to you, while it has been 'life as usual' for most of the people you know back home.
- Values you have maintained all your life may come into question. You may feel convicted about certain things you have always done or become disturbed by things that others say or do. Things that once seemed very important may suddenly appear trivial or meaningless.
- Though people may ask you, "How was your trip?" many do not really want to know the details. Not everyone will share your enthusiasm and want to hear about your trip.
- It is important to connect with your team mates after you return to help you adjust.

The following are some ways that people deal with RE-ENTRY and the above reactions:

ALIENATE (negative)

- Assume the "Nobody understands. Nobody cares." attitude
- Withdraw or become an elite group that excludes others
- Become depressed, judgmental, critical

ASSIMILATE (negative)

- Compartmentalize the experience. It is over. Check it off the calendar and get on with life as though nothing significant happened
- Dive into diversions: movies, malls, activities

- Channel your desire to do something by overcompensating or assuming ‘black and white’ mentality
- Be tough and untouched

INTEGRATE (positive)

- Use lessons from your experience as a springboard for positive growth and change
- Search for platforms where you can share your experience with a selective audience
- Become a “bridge” between your experience and how those at home can benefit from it
- Use your experience as a tool for evangelism
- Be a spokesperson sharing with others so they can ‘catch the vision’ of the Great Commission in Matthew 28:19-20

There are more positive ways for you to handle your transition back to life at home. Here are some steps you can take before and when you return that will help things go smoothly:

- Prepare for re-entry shock
- Pray and listen to God
- Journal and re-read your mission journal one day at a time
- Become a good listener with others. Be interested in their lives
- Prepare a ‘snapshot’ of your trip
- Become a storyteller. Learn to salt your speech to make others thirsty
- Seize the opportunity to share with that person that really wants to listen
- Get together with others from your team who shared the same experience
- Be a point of strength by living out your newly identified values at home
- Remember successes and accomplishments
- Use the ‘talents’ God has given you
- Write a note of thanks and share your experience with everyone who received your request for support letter

- Eat well, rest and exercise. Understand that you will probably feel a physical letdown upon your return as well
- Realize that long-term changes may take time and patience
- Continue to make plans to impact your life and the lives of others
- Make the minutes of your life count for eternity

Prepare a five-minute testimony to give when your friends ask you about the trip. Invite anyone interested to meet with and look at your pictures or make copies of your journal and pass these out. Refer people to the Serve the Children web site and recruit people to sponsor children, donate to STC or consider going on a mission trip with us.

Be prepared for flashbacks or re-runs; memories of your trip that were negative-the poverty that you witnessed, malnutrition of the children, etc. Why does God allow bad things to happen to good people or to children? Do you serve a big God who cares for you or a little god who cares nothing about you? You will be forced to ponder these questions and more.

CONTINUING YOUR MISSION INVOLVEMENT: WONDERING HOW TO MAKE A DIFFERENCE IN YOUR CORNER OF THE WORLD?

Discover Your Unique Life Mission

“What do I need to do next after a mission trip?”

- God has a mission for the world and is already working to reach out to the hopeless, hurting, and lost people groups. He has invited us to respond to his call to join Him at work around the world.
- We don’t want you to develop an interest in going on multiple short-term trips for adventure travel. We want to help you develop a heart for your world.
- You have something unique to give! God desires to use your gifts, passions and life experiences as a unique life mission to the world. To where or to whom will it be?

“What is a unique life mission?”

It is allowing God to use your gifts and abilities, life and vocational experiences (both the good and the bad), and passions and interests for the Great Commission of reaching out to people with Christ’s love.

Plan your schedule for the next 30 days by committing to some of these suggestions. Keep these commitments with you as a reminder in discovering your life mission.

1. PRAY FOR A WORLD VISION

"When he saw the crowds, he felt sorry for them because they were hurting and helpless, like sheep without a shepherd. Jesus said to his followers, "There are many people to harvest but only a few workers to help harvest them. Pray to the Lord, who owns the harvest, that he will send more workers to gather his harvest." Matthew 9:36-38

- Pray for 5 friends, family members or neighbors who need a relationship with Jesus. Include someone of a different ethnicity than your own. How can God use your recent mission trip experience to expand your vision locally?
- Ask God daily for the next month: "Help me see the world the way you do."
- What can you volunteer for to help Serve the Children?
- Pray for your passion issues globally (i.e. abortion, homeless children, health, and women's shelters).
- Turn your current life roles (Little League coach, consistent customer, employee, neighbor, etc.) into a mission field. Ask God to give you opportunities to share God's love in practical serving ways and to share a bit of your faith story with them.

2. CONSIDER WHERE YOUR LIFE DREAMS COLLIDE WITH THE WORLD'S NEEDS

- Ask yourself: What would I do for God if I knew I couldn't fail? Then write it down! Commit to praying about that dream.
- Read the international sections of the news. (The Bible tells us what God wants to do in the world: the news tells us where He needs to do it and where we need to be involved through our prayers.)
- Pray daily for the staff of Serve the Children.

3. GET CONNECTED

"And let us consider how we may spur one another on toward love and good deeds." Hebrews 10:24

- Invite a speaker from Serve the Children to your church, Sunday School class, small group or Bible study
- Volunteer some time in your church (Need: administrative help, phone calling, special projects)
- Commit to sponsoring a child or staff person at Serve the Children.
- Take a next step in leadership. How would you like to lead a short-term trip for Serve the Children? Contact dougc@servethechildren.com.

4. EXPLORE THE NEXT STEPS

"My children, we should love people not only with words and talk, but by our actions and true caring." 1 John 3:18

- Lead out in an opportunity to practically serve in the community. Encourage other members to participate with you.
- Meet with a staff person of Serve the Children or your church to discuss in greater detail how God wants to use your unique shape for life mission around the world.
- Tell your mission story. Encourage others to step out in faith and be stretched to see and experience their world in whole new ways. Have a "Chai Night" info party for your friends, relatives and supporters when you return to introduce them to the children who need sponsors and tell them what you saw and did.
- Serve the Children has many openings for volunteers. We would love to talk to you about using your skills in our organization.

We all know money is not everything. You worked hard to raise money for your two-week mission trip. Now what? Do not stop being engaged. Consider the following options:

1. Sponsor a child and ask your friends, relatives and donors to your mission trip to sponsor a child
2. Volunteer- Serve the Children needs you. We have fundraisers and we need help, as well as occasional office support
3. Recruit future mission team members for Serve the Children

SERVE THE CHILDREN
SHORT-TERM MISSION POLICIES AND TEAM COVENANT

I realize that the following principles are crucial to the effectiveness, quality and safety of our mission together. As a member of the short-term mission team, I agree to adhere to these policies:

1. Remember that I am a representative of SERVE THE CHILDREN (STC) and the church I attend, and as such I will seek to represent good spiritual values, moral conduct and a likeness to Christ that is embraced in that assembly. I will adhere to the STC Mission Statement and Statements of Faith and Belief in my conduct and conversation.
2. Remember that I have come not only to teach, but also to learn. I may be exposed to procedures and practices that I feel are ineffective or insufficient. I may also be confronted by attitudes that I feel are narrow or close-minded. As this occurs I will resist the temptation to "correct" my hosts and inform them about "how things are done back in the United States."
3. Respect my host's culture and distinctive practices of Christianity. I recognize that the Christian faith has many different faces throughout the world, and that one of the purposes of my trip is to witness and experience faith lived out in a different culture.
4. Develop and consistently maintain a servant's attitude toward all nationals and my teammates.
5. Respect our team leader(s) and their decisions and the guidance of our host country staff.
6. Refrain from gossip and keep my promise of giving only good reports. If there are policies and decisions made by the leaders with which I disagree or do not understand, I will go to the team leaders in private and make my concerns known to them rather than to other team members. In so doing I will avoid the possibility of sowing seeds of dissension and division. If someone on the team offends me I promise to remain silent and forgive the person before God in my heart (Mk. 11:25), allowing love to cover a multitude of sins (1 Pet. 4:8), or go to the person privately and seek reconciliation. I will resolve to approach an offender in the spirit of gentleness and genuine love, having first corrected my own attitude and actions (Gal. 6: 1, 2). Only if I am unable to restore an offender will I share the problem with others according to the principles of Matthew 18: 15-20. When I violate these aforementioned principles, I resolve to ask the forgiveness of my brother or sister and the Lord, knowing that God resists the proud, but gives grace to the humble (James 4:6). By doing all these things I will seek to promote harmony on my team.
7. Be patient, forbearing and forgiving toward the short-comings of the other members on the team.
8. Refrain from complaining. I realize that travel can present numerous unexpected and undesirable circumstances, but the rewards of conquering such circumstances should be my goal. I will resolve to be flexible, supporting and adaptive on such occasions rather than grumbling when circumstances are difficult.
9. Respect the work that is going on in the host country with its pastors and leaders. I realize that our team will be there for just a short time, but the local church and ministry is there long term. I will respect their knowledge, insights and instructions.
10. Refrain from negative comments or hostile discussions concerning the host country's politics and culture.
11. Remember not to be exclusive in my relationships with the team. If my best friend or spouse is on the team we will make every effort to interact regularly with all team members of the team.
12. Refrain from activity or undue interest that could be construed as a romantic interest toward a national. I realize that certain actions that seem innocent in my own culture may be inappropriate in another culture.
13. Refrain from any consumption of alcoholic beverages, including beer, wine, and liquors. While this is not an attempt to bind the conscience, I understand that such indulgence may cause another to stumble. I realize and accept that failure to adhere to this mandate will result in my exclusion from further short-term trips with STC.
14. Refrain from use of any tobacco or tobacco related products while on this trip. This is due to the different cultural or religious views of tobacco usage the team may encounter and I do not want to hurt my witness or the team's testimony.
15. Remember my financial commitment as a team member and to STC in choosing to be a part of this team.
16. Attend team meetings in the US and in the country where I am serving.
17. I will help with fundraising activities for the team as much as my schedule will allow. All pictures or videos that I am in are the property of STC.

I understand that if I cannot abide by this covenant, I may be asked to return home early at my own expense and will not have any funds that were spent on this mission trip returned to me.

Sample Fundraising Letter

Dear (name):

Make your first paragraph a personal greeting and introduction.

God has opened the door for me to go on a short-term mission trip to India with Serve the Children in October, 20XX. We will be working in central India as well as in a small slum in Mumbai. I will be involved with the (education, recreation, medical team) as we work with the children that live in the home.

You can find out more about the ministries of Serve the Children by visiting their web page at www.servethechildren.com.

This is a team project, and you are needed on the team. First, I need to have a prayer team in the US supporting me while I am on the trip. Would you be willing to sign a prayer covenant and committing to praying everyday for me and the team while we are gone?

Second, please pray to God about becoming a financial partner with me in this project. The total cost is $xxx. Would you consider investing $xx to help me pay for this trip? Much of the cost of the trip is due by August 1, 20XX.

If you would like to join me in this, please make your check payable to "Serve the Children." Either return your check to me or you can send it directly to Serve the Children, 6314 19th Street West, Unit 18, Fircrest, WA 98466. Just place my name on the memo line of the check and the funds will be directed to my account. Your payment is tax deductible.

If I do not hear from you by _____, I will attempt to contact you to see what you have decided. I can answer any questions you may have at that time.

You are very important to me. Thank you for praying about being a part of my team.

Letter tips:

4. Avoid mass produced letters
5. Avoid long words and sentences
6. Establish a deadline
7. Mention the amount of money that you need. Maybe suggest an amount to give
8. If you have been on a mission trip before, briefly explain to your supporters how the trip changed your life or impacted you personally
9. Follow-up

HISTORY OF SERVE THE CHILDREN

Serve the Children was founded to give opportunity to children without access to an education. Poor and underserved, they are vulnerable to malnutrition, disease, child labor, and a lifetime of poverty. Without the hope an education provides, they have little chance to rise above the hard circumstances of their lives. Serve the Children exists to offer hope and a future through God's love to underserved children and families around the world by meeting their educational, physical and emotional needs.

Liberia

Fourteen years of civil war-ravaged Liberia between 1989 and 2003. Rebel factions kidnapped children, forcing them to abuse their own families as a way to condition them into being ruthless soldiers. The UN estimates that 15,000 children fought, murdered, and pillaged during the war. Warlords gave soldiers of all ages psychedelic drugs to force their dependency and extinguish their inhibitions. Families fled to the capital of Monrovia to escape looting, rape, and murder. The city, crippled with no infrastructure or government, became overcrowded with refugees. More than 150,000 people were killed, leaving more than 50% of the population under the age of 18.

Liberia has been steadily rebuilding since the war ended in 2003, however, it is a low-income country and around 54% of the population lives below poverty level. Education must be a priority for Liberia to go forward. Only about 62% of males over age 15 and about 32% of females over age 15 can read and write (2015 estimates, CIA World Factbook, cia.gov). Government schools are full beyond capacity, suffer corruption, and offer low pay for barely qualified teachers. Modest school fees or uniform requirements for private schools put basic education out of reach for most families. A 2013 news report indicated that many young girls were turning to prostitution to pay for school.

The founders of STC were compelled to help the war orphans and former child soldiers of Liberia after witnessing firsthand the atrocities of the civil war. In 1997, we helped found a school in the capital city, Monrovia. At that time, it was the only tuition free school in the country, and the only school focused on Christian education and counseling for former soldiers and war orphans. Our schools operated consistently and expanded steadily, even during wartime, unless forced to close by the fighting. As former child soldiers have aged through our schools, the mission has expanded from war orphans and former soldiers to reach children who simply cannot afford to pay for school. Currently, STC partners with Action Faith Institute that serves preschool through 12th grade students.

India

India's forgotten children are living on meager subsistence in rural tribal villages. They live hours away from access to clean water or education. Generational poverty and an unrelenting caste system create little opportunity for children to have a better life than their parents. The government and a number of non-governmental organizations are seeking to provide food and education to India's impoverished rural families, but the need continues to outweigh the help.

In 2007, we began partnering with Hosanna Ministries, an Indian ministry. In Lasina we offer a vocational school and currently teach young people from local villages Microsoft Office and tailoring. Without these skills, these young people would probably end up as farm laborers earning about $3 per day. Lasina is a very rural village and we are the only option for vocational training close by.

In 2017, Hosanna Ministries began serving women and children in Mumbai. Many women and children live in the slums and earn a meager living by picking rags from the dump and selling them. They are vulnerable to human trafficking, disease, and malnutrition. We offer sewing classes for women to help them better provide for their families, other vocational training including computer classes, a preschool, an after school program and a day school with a meal for children who would otherwise have no hope of education.

Zambia

In 2018, Serve the Children began partnering with Pure Nard Ministries to help continue the amazing work that is being done in Mungu, Zambia.

Zambia is a nation of peaceful people. Rich in natural wonders and with hospitality as a cultural cornerstone, Zambia has much to offer, but like many other Southern African nations, Zambia has been ravaged by HIV/AIDS, extreme poverty, and a lack of resources. Almost half of the nation's population is under the age of 14 (46%) due to high rates of disease and poor health care. Health and nutrition, education, job training, and food security are all major issues of concern for rural families. Pure Nard Ministries serves to address these issues in community and by the community.

Pure Nard Ministries is located in Mungu, a rural community south of the nation's capital, Lusaka. The preschool has three classes; a baby class (3-year olds), a middle class (4 and 5-year olds), and a reception (which we know as kindergarten, for 6 and 7-year olds). It is an English-medium school, giving a head-start for some of the world's poorest as they gain school readiness. The school serves its children and their families by providing an education, but it also serves the community by providing a meal for students and by drawing families into the church. In 2024 the Pure Nard Grade School opened with first grade and will add one class a year up to grade seven, preparing students for the grade seven exams and secondary school.

All our STC supported schools are led fully by local leadership. We partner with local leaders who understand how to best serve their own communities. Our objective is to resource and equip schools in a shared vision to improve the future of children.

The children in our schools are eager and ready. Each one has a dream to be something greater than the poverty they see around them. Our goal is to equip them to fulfill those dreams by providing free education. We believe God made them with amazing talents and potential for today and for the future.

We invite you to come join us on a life-changing mission trip to one of the countries where we serve. Help us to achieve our vision of “educating the underserved”. You can partner with us to change a life by sponsoring a child or one of our teachers. Contact our office via email at info@servethechildren.com and we will get back to you.
